

The Composition Program and the English Department at the University of Delaware welcome...

Professor Jessica Restaino
Montclair State University

Surrender as Method:
Research, Writing, Rhetoric, Love

Thursday, October 16

3:30-4:45 p.m.

Memorial Hall, Rm. 127

Since Summer 2012, Jessica Restaino has collaborated on an ethnographic project with Susan Maute, a woman living with Stage IV breast cancer. In this talk, she explores the relationship to language, her body, and her disease. Restaino argues for an alternate set of methods premised upon the notion of “surrender,” and that such a methodological “letting go” invites new kinds of collaborative, feminist knowledge-making

Hosted in part by

One Hundred Ten | For students and teachers of English 110 at the University of Delaware

Joseph Harris
Director of Composition

Christine Cucciarre
Associate Director of Composition

Petra Clark
*Assistant Director
of Composition*

Barbara Lutz
*Faculty Administrator
of Composition*

*If you have questions regarding Professor Restaino's lecture,
email
Joseph Harris at jdbarris@udel.edu*